APPEAL OF THE LAWYERS

They Seek to Prevent a Stay of Street Extension Proceedings.

OPINION OF COMPTROLLER

It Is to the Effect That an Appropria tion Made to Pay A Cannot Be Diverted to B-Lawyers Argue That the Condemnation Jury Can Watt for Their Money.

Comptroller Bowler's response to the query concerning the pay of juries in the serviceable as any $20 couch what the petitioners anticipated, and what, ever made. Tust the couch they claim, might have been known in adever made. Just the couch | they cause by all parties. It was to the effect that an appropriation made to pay A cannot be diverted to B.

The fact is, however, that there have been two appropriations made, in the aggregate $18,000, a part of which was spe-cially set aside for the preliminary surveys and for the preparation of the maps.

There is a small balance only, and it a most inviting, luxurious greater it could not be used. The money appropriated for the pay of the regular jurors, it is also asserted, cannot be used to pay a jury in the condemnation proceed-lugs. Chief Justice Bingham reviewed the circonstances this morning and intimated that the situation seemed to forbid an order for the appointment of a jury. STATED THE FACTS.

Mr. Nathaniel Wilson, in behalf of the petitioners, asked that before that decreasion he should be permitted to state some facts, which, he said, the court should be advised of. He had, he said, examined the law and consulted with the office of the Attorney General, and he could see no reason, either upon information received or in law, for a stay of proceedings. The question whether the cause shall go on was not referred to the comptroller. Section 9 of the act of March 3, 1893.

provides that the Commissioners shall in-provides that the Commissioners shall include in their estimates, as in other cases, an appropriation for carrying out the provisions of the act.

In the contingency that now appears, Mr. Wilson suggested, it is very extraordinary that the District Commissioners should express surprise at the discovery at this late day, two years and more after the act was put upon the statute books, that there is not money at command to pay the jurors.

That there is a balance on hand is sufficient basis upon which to order that the cause may be proceeded with, and, as in cient basis upon which to order that the cause may be proceeded with, and, as in other cases, depend upon to Congress to pass a deficiency bill. Such a bill, Mr. Wilson said, could be passed before the holidays, and meanwhile, if there is any doubt the parties will be giad to guarantee the marshal against the incurrence of liability for jury fees. They will willingly agree to pay the few hundred dollars that will be necessary for the first proceedings under a necessary for the first proceedings under a jury. INJURY WOULD RESULT.

"To stop here," Mr. Wilson declared blight and destruction upon the involved property; an irreparable injury.
Liability for advertising is incurred already, for which, I understand, there is no provision. If, in that instance, why not in this? The case before the court, No. 419, can be adjudicated in fifteen, or not to exceed, thirty days.
"To shut the doors of the court now in the face of those brought here by the act of the Commissioners, would be a hardship.

"Juries have waited for pay and they may again," argued Mr. Wilson, "and it is unnecessary to cast about now to see how the money is to be procured."
Mr. Wilson seemed to voice the sentiments of all the petitioners, but Mr. W. L. Cole and others of counsel briefly advanced the court mon polyts not touched ressed the court upon points not touched upon.

Mr. Thomas, for the Commissioners, responded in a few words, in the course of which he said, as to the advertising, that it was being done solely at the risk of two papers, that had agreed in advance to do papers, that had agreed in advance to do the work and depend upon Congress to pass a bill to pay the charges. He also said the Commissioners had included in their esti-mates for next year an item to pay the cost of the condemnation proceedings.

A motion was made that the bill be dis-missed at the expiration of thirty days in

GOOD THINGS IN MARKET

Buyers for Thanksgiving Crowd the Aisles and Fill Baskets.

All the Staple Articles of the Day Found in Plenty and at Cheap

This is red letter day in the markets enter Market put on Thanksgiving clothes and an air of business last night, and today it is the scene of crowding, surging, fretful, faltering, turkey-buying humanity.

The crowd is large, but it is not what it was last year, the market mensay, nor what it has been years before. The you, as be takes short intervals for breath, between waiting on this customer and then on that, that the stores are fast driving the market man out of existence.

In fact, he himself says that he will soon be an extinct species, for where is the man, he asks, that would not step around the corner and purchase his whole holiday lay out of palatables than to travel away to the market, even though he bnew he could get better and cheaper?

The market is far from an unsightly place at these times. Prettily decorated booths of the freshest flowers at not infrequent in-tervals are the bandsomest adoruments of all. The vegetable stands reveal every pig ment in Nature's color box, from the bright vermillion of the beet to the blending of the flake-white celery stalk into the brilliant green of the spraying top.

The long avenues of the meat stalls present so tempting a display that it is difficult to prevent the very teeth from shedding tears. Stall after stall is filled with the tears. Stall after stall is filled with the choicest porterhouse steaks, prime ribs, iamb chops, quarters of beet, hams, sausages and saited meats of every variety. Along the side aisies the fish rows and game stalls stand side by side. The game hampers are filled with everything that heart or appetite could wish. In monster piles or in tempting bunches salmon, bass, perch, pike, red snapper, sheepshead and a score of other varieties attract the eye. The all-present turkey sold for 14 and 15 cents a pound this morning, but he will sell for 12 1-2 cents this evening. In fact, the marketer who goes tonight with 83 can buy what his neighbor spent 85 for this morning and get as much and as good as he. The market will be open until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Localities Where Vice Flourishes and

Efforts of the Police-Crimes of Foggy Bottom and Swampoodle.

There is a growing sentiment among officials and citizens of the District favoring the increase in the membership of the Metropolitian police force, advo-cased by The Times, and already, in anticipation of probable appointments, applications for positions on that body are being filed. There seems to be no doubt in the minds of the heads of the department that Congress will realize the needs of the District in this direction, and authorize the appointment.

member of the department. He says that it is an absolute impossibility for the force of men at present available for active street duty to afford proper protection to life and property in the District.

FORCE REMAINS THE SAME.

Notwithstanding the immense growth of the city in recent years, the force remains practically the same, and sections that were a few years ago broad commons and vacant lots are now built up and populous, but have no more men to look after the in-terests of the residents than when human babitations were few and far between.

There are some portions of the city in which it is absolutely dangerous for pedestrians to walk at night. The size of the beats and the officers' inability to take care of both ends of it at once continue to take

Gamblers' Happy Days in the Places Where They Are Fairly County Jail at Alexandria.

FOSTER GIVES HIMSELF UP

Thugs in Confluement Indulge in Drinks, Cards and Other Sport. Profane Jaller Hays-Citizens Support The Times' Assertions-What the State Has Lost by Compromise.

George Foster, the partner of Nelson, who was convicted of gambling in Alexan-dria County and sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and serve ten days in jail by Judge Chichester yesterday, came into the county courtroom in Alexandria and gave himself up. He was given the same alleged punshment inflicted upon Nelson.

The fact that he came in and gave him self up shows exactly how the gamblers of the county feel about the punishment in store for them. They can well afford to pay the paltry fines given them and serve the hort sentences imposed. Life in the Alexandria fail to people with money is "one grand sweet song." Yesterday afternoon a Times reporter visited the jail in which the Heath crowd is onfined, and from the general appearance of all of them they were evidently having of all of them they were evidently having a very pleat time.

New blankets had been put on the beds, cigars were in abundance, and setting over in one corner of the cell was a bucket full of holdled beer. Upon being asked how they liked their quarters Jim La Fontaine replied that he had seen worse.

The gamblers are allowed everything they wish for. Their meals are prepared in a neighboring restaurant and sent in.

The only punishment inflicted upon them is that they are not allowed to go where they please. The whole party were put in one KEEPER HAYS PROFANE. care of both ends of it at once continue to make things easy for crooks, and it is in such locations that "hold-ups" are most frequent. Of course, the moral tone of these localities has increased considerably in recent years, but there still lurks evidences of old-time lawlesspess.

In Southeast Washington, extending from First street to Four-and-shalf street, and from about K street to the river front, is that part of the city known as "Blood-field." At one time in the city's history it was completely crime-ridden, but it is considerably improved of recent years. Nearly every corner in "Bloodfield" has been the scene of some bloody fight, or is commemorative of a robbery. Even now fights, robberies and tragedies of all sorts are of frequent occurrence. When a Times reporter visited the jail and asked Keeper Hays to allow him to go uprand see the nien the following col-

"Well, ether say yes or no." "Well, either say yes or no."
I won't let you inside the jail unless you have a permit from Capt. Smith. If he gives you shale then I will let you in; otherwise you will have be stay out. You people have been raising ho up in Wastington in the papers, and we don't want my interference inflour affairs. I don't like such talk as was in The Times this morning?"

After closing his flow of choice pro-

After closing his flow of choice proanter closing his low of cooler pro-family Mr. Hays examined to the reporter a copy of this Morning's Times, in which it was stated that the prisoners were al-lowed drinks in the half. Capt. Smith it should be stated could not be found. Mr. Hays is a typical father. He is about x ivet high, has a dark, brown mustache six iset high, has a dark brown mastache, and wears cordoroy trousers. Mr Hays is evidently very much in love with his mustache, as during the conversation he kept stroking and brushing it. He even brushed and caressed the hair on his upper lip while he was trying to pick out the article which he thought reflected upon him and he mastaches of the different him and his management of the jail.

To the most casual observer it was plainly evident that Mr. Hays wou dihave been very glad to have amasted the reporter with the iron keys to the cell doors, which he

It is said that Judge Chichester and Special Prosecuting Attorney Marbury are quite indignant that The Times should criticise their action in the gambling cases. O'Ferrall. It is extremely hard to tell Petertive Baldwin says he had evidence against the men to convict them on at least thirty-five cases if the prosecuting attor-ncy had called for it. The gamblers before ney had called for it. The gamblers before the trial each offered to pay $1,000 if not prosecuted. Why this evidence was not called for is a mystery, and will probably remain so until the special appointee of the governor. Mr. Marbury, makes a statement.

That the gamblers were elated over the light fines and sentences was clearly illustrated in this instance. When Mr. Pent, the attorney for the Heaths, went to sack Heath, sr., to get the money to settle the cases he told him how much it was, and the old man exclaimed: exclaimed:
"What! is that all! Why I thought it

The Heaths were willing, and even anxious, to compromise the cases by the payment of $6,000, if there was not a payment of $5,000, if there was not a jail sentence attached to it, yet when the cases came up before Judge Chichester a compromise was effected whereby the largest flue to be paid was $100.

Mr. Brent, the counsel for the gamblers, openly said on the street of Alexandria yesterday that if he had taken the case to trip before a jury har payment was 100.

The position taken by The Times has the support of every good citizen of Alexandria County. When several of the citizens of the county were approached this morning at the county courthouse, they all expressed themselves as highly delighted at the stand taken by The Times, and said also that the whole affair was one of the most disgraceful that hasever taken place in the county. Detective lightdwin is receiving warm praise from every law-abiding citizen of the county, and they say that it was through no fault of his that there was such a disgusting miscarriage of justice.

Gov. O'ferrall has not as yet been heard from as to what he thinks of the affair. It is expected that he will make a statement of some sort tonight. ment of some sort tonight.
